THE GRANT MONUMENT.

It is a consolation to know that the plan for the Grant Monument has been accepted. The Committee appears to have used a good deal of hard compon sense in determining the successful can- badly for having been there. didate in the competition. One thing which had great weight in making the design exhibited by Mr. John B. Duncan acceptable to the judges was its adaptability to the instalment idea in erecting it. There is nothing to hinder work from being begun at once. There is the sum of $140,000 on hand for the Grant Monument Fund, and that will push it to a point where, even if there be delay in continuing it, the portion erected will not present a distressing appearance of incompleteness.

To begin it is the great thing now New York will feel assured that the Grant Monument is to be erected here when the noble memorial begins to take root, so to speak, in Gotham soil.

The estimated cost of the perfected work is half a million dollars. To some minds that may seem an extravagant sum for a tombstone. But the right-thinking American will reflect that if Gen. GRANT deserves a monument at all he should have one which will commemorate not Chief of the Army in the terrible crisis of internecine strife in the States and of a distinguished President, but will also rethe admiration of all his friends.

It should be also borne in mind that the Grant Memorial as a Nation's monument, and every State in the Union should contribute its quota to the erection of it.

BUBINESS THRIVING.

A stranger could not visit this city with out being struck by the extraordinary nctivity manifested in building. New York is not only growing at her extremities, although she is doing that with wonderful vitality. Old business places in the heart of the city are being torn down that towering structures may take their places, several stories higher than the old ones, and far surpassing them in the magnificence of their architecture and the conveniences of their equipments.

This is a sure sign of prosperity. Money has to be put in circulation by the erec tion of these expensive buildings and labor is provided for thousands of workmen. This is as it should be. The gain which capital makes for itself should produce a corresponding advantage in labor.

Many of these buildings employ the yellowish brown brick which is such an agreeable element in construction either for dwelling-houses or buildings for business purposes. The color is grateful, and the weather does not alter it, and the material is durable. Taste is advancing with everything else.

BLUNDERING NUMBERS.

It seems to matter very little whether New York City is reputed to have a population of one or two hundred thousand less than she is actually possessed of.
But there are results of practical importance hinging on a correct census of

But even if nothing depended on the correctness of the census enumeration, it is irritating to have all the trouble and expense of counting noses for a mass of more than a million and a half beings and then not arrive at a true result.

There are strong reasons for question ing the completeness of the work, and it should be done rightly if for no other reason than to prevent the city from being imposed on.

The cases which come up before the Police Justices are very much alike, and the class of offenders are very much of the same stripe. They are poor, illiterate persons, coarse and unprepossessing. As a rule the cases offer little that is complicated, and familiarity with human nature and keenness in reading character are the most valuable qualities a Police Justice can possess. The monotony of these reiterated mass and the uninteresting character of the offenders are likely to beget an unsympathetic perfunctory treatment of them in the Police Justice. But the Justices get good enough salaries to make it incumbent on them to be just, even if it is a bore to listen to the cases attentively and give them due reflection. That the poor man is one who can ill resent an unjust decision in his case makes it all the more imperative that perfect fairness should rule the Judge sales with mutten taller after dinner. who sits upon his case.

It is not mere idle suspicion that some times this justice is not of the timest strain.

CAUGHT HIS TRAIN, ANYHOW.

The Struggle of a Man with an Idea and a Watermelon.

Chicago's hardest worked people are the nes living in the suburbs, says the Chicago Heraid. Life to them means just one thing, and that is, " to catch a train," A man's business, a woman's shopping, patience, pleasure, pride is built up around that one idea, and everything is sacrificed

Rushing down Lake street Saturday night was a short, fleshy man and a big, ound watermelon. The watermelon was carried by a manufactured rope harness, and the scale was about evenly balanced. Sometimes the man was a little the heaviest, and then again the watermeton would swing the man off the ground, but both were in perfect harmony as to the ne idea.

While the swinging motion accelerated speed it was a decidedly dangerous thur-ough are for people not governed by this axis in the wheel of life.
